Mays Center denied tenure

In a surprise move that shocked students and faculty alike, the Faculty Committee on Personnel denied tenure to the Benjamin E. Mays Center, President Harvard announced today. The award-winning building, affectionately known among students as "The Silo," failed to pass its sixth-year review, despite having been though a sure pick for tenure among this year's round of candidates. The Mays Center now has one year of service left at Bates before it must seek employment elsewhere; arrangements for moving the massive brick and concrete structure to another college are now underway. The other three buildings in the Residential Village received tenure. Meanwhile, the Olin Arts Center was promoted to full professor.

Football team recognizes Discordians' right to exist

In a breakthrough for campus relations, the Bates Bobcat football team signed a landmark peace accord with members of the Bates Discordians, recognizing the right of the latter group to exist. "Dude, those kids are a fuckin' freak show," said lineman Crisp Kuppens '99, "but if they wanna play with their stupid little magic beans or whatever where they're not bothering us, that's fine with me." Kuppens later added, "YEAH BATES!" As the Discordians and athletes celebrated with a Magic the Gathering tournament and keg party in the Adams basement, negotiators in the long and acrimonious Big Room-Small Room peace talks returned to the table, seeking compromise on the issue of which room gets the stir-fry table and which gets the pasta bar.

Coach Ned Flanders welcomes debate recruiting class

With a hearty "Howdy-do, neighbor!" Brooks Quimby debate coach Ned Flanders welcomed a group of fifteen debate team recruits to the Bates campus Friday. The recruits, drawn from among the top high-school debaters from around the country, were flown first-class to Lewiston, greeted by Flanders, then after enjoying a tour of the Pettigrew trophy case and a meeting of the Brooks Quimby Debate Council, were accompanied by Flanders for an evening of wholesome, "Spectafferiffic!" family fun at the local bowling alley. The recruiting visit, funded by President Ned Harwood's secret six-figure debate slush fund comes as part of an effort to return a number-one world ranking to the elite Brooks Quimby debate team, an organization about which only 0.6% of Batesies give a rat's ass.

Branham returns to home planet

Dean of Students Fernando C. Branham is on leave for the month enjoying a siest on her home planet of Gerular in the Andromeda galaxy, announced President Harpy yesterday. Branham, known on her home planet as Bezlar-Bok 377W, is reportedly visiting long-lost relatives, celebrating a major religious feast on the Gerlari calendar and "trying to get away from that damn Commons smell." Husband Bob was on a business trip to the planet Vulcan and could not be reached for comment.

Mork Jewel, Comedian Tommy Chong Sign Three-Movie Deal

Universal Pictures announced Tuesday that noted Bates rugby player Mork Jewel '99 and legendary comedian Tommy Chong have signed a three-movie deal worth in excess of $100 million. Industry executives say the new "Chooch 'n' Chong" movies, which will feature copious amounts of drinking in addition to Chong's legendary marijuana-based humor, are sure to be a hit among rugby players, frat brothers, and stoners too stupid to tell the difference nationwide.

Al Gore grants EPA "Superfund" status to Lake Andrews

(We're talking about the Puddle)

As part of the Clinton administration's new round of environmental initiatives, Al Gore came to Bates this week to announce that the Environmental Protection Agency would confer high-priority "Superfund" status to the cleanup of Lake Andrews. To avoid noxious, corrosive Puddle vapors, Gore spoke in a yellow hazardous materials suit, including a full face mask and respirator. No one remembers much of what he said, since most reporters and spectators had drifted off to sleep two minutes into his speech. The move came in the face of stiff opposition from congressional Republicans, who wanted to study the mutant goldfish and noxious microbes contained in the Puddle for possible use as agents of biological warfare.

Harward, Harwood settle name dispute in court

President Don Harward and Associate Professor of ART Ned Harwood have settled their name dispute out of court, their lawyers said Monday. The settlement comes as part of a lengthy effort by both sides to clear up confusion surrounding their respective names. The Bates president will henceforth be known as "Dead Hardwood," a compromise reached by merging the two parties' original names. The art history professor, meanwhile, will now be known as "Mark Wahlberg." The president paid an undisclosed amount of money, reported at $500,000 in L.L. Bean stock and outrageous parking permits, for rights to the professor's former name. Sources say the artist formerly known as Ned plans to spend the sum by turning Garcelon Field (where the Bobcats try to play football) into a huge English landscape garden. Bothe "Woody" and Marky Mark declined comment on the matter.

CHC releases 98-99 concert lineup

Complying with student concerns about the lack of hegemony in the college's music scene, CHC has released their 98-99 concert lineup. The first three bands booked are Guster, Guster and the Nields. "We know, the Nields were a real risk — especially at Bates. But sometimes, you just have to take a chance," said the Music Director of the organization. In addition to the concerts, CHC has decided to step-up their attempts to brown-nose Assistant Dean of Students Peter Trailer and have announced that all parties, including Halloween, will now be substance free.

Broody, Limely Campaign for Joint Degrees

On the heels of their unsuccessful bid to merge their separate campaigns into a joint candidacy for the senior class presidency, seniors Jennings Broody and Jay Limely are now lobbying the Trustees to have their respective degrees combined into a single diploma. "Nowhere in the course catalog does it say that multiple people can't share in a single Bates degree," said Limely. Added Broody, "Isn't it time we seniors started making our own choices?" President Don Hayward, when questioned on the matter, did not comment verbally, but left the room laughing hysterically, reportedly wetting his pants.

Crips Pay Recruiting Visit to OCS

As part of an effort to improve the quality of their nationwide workforce, the Crips, a nationally-renowned, LA-based street gang with branches nationwide, visited the OCS on Monday in an effort to recruit graduating seniors. "A good liberal-arts education, like that offered at Bates, produces graduates that have qualities we look for in a recruit — like the ability to blindly follow a leader, any leader," said Larry 'Little Fish' Pernell, O.G. in charge of recruiting for the Northeast Region.

FBI joins manhunt for Masturbator

By DAVIS CLEAVER
Crime Sleuth

A team of federal investigators arrived this week to join Bates Security and the LAPD in their three-year manhunt for the Masturbator. In addition to gathering DNA evidence from the government documents section of the library, which the masturbator frequented quite often in 1995, the FBI plans to monitor Mount David and the private listening rooms located in the Audio section of the library.

"We haven't caught anything on our surveillance of Audio," said Special Agent Fox Skelly. "Everything we have on videotape has been consensual sex of a multi-person nature."

In response to the arrival of the FBI, the Bates Spudent launched its own investigation this week, vowing to catch the Masturbator in the act. Late last night in the library, Spudent investigators caught the Masturbator doing his thang.

Surprisingly enough, the Masturbator was not in the government documents section, but in the "Hardbounds" and "Oversized Books" section of the library. The Spudent managed to get a picture, which was promptly subpoenaed by FBI investigators, but Spudent investigators got messy when they attempted to apprehend the masturbator.

"I was blinded. I couldn't see anything. It was pretty powerful," said Rod Peckley, who is heading up the Spudent investigation.

"I think he may have been a Colby Student, but perhaps he wore that shirt to throw us off," said Scary Cox, special assistant to Peckley.

The Bates Student learned late last night that the Secret Service will be present for graduation on Monday. The Secret Service is concerned the Masturbator may expose himself at graduation during the address of Doris Kearns Goodwin, who graduated from Colby College. Goodwin, a presidential biographer, is currently working on her expose of President Clinton, entitled "Clinterngate: Oval Sex and Executive Privilege."

Professional protestors from Bates are planning a 1:00 a.m. demonstration in front of President Harward's to denounce the college's failure to capture the masturbator.

Students seem surprised that the masturbator may be a Colby student. Most Batesies who The Bates Spudent interviewed pointed the finger at one student in particular.

"I could have sworn it was that guy Lavid Deeber," said Corvette Ferrari, who is a co-coordinator of the Bates Democrats with Deeber. "He's been an embarrassment to my organization the whole year. I think he sleeps in the government documents section."

"I'm elated that I've finally been vindicated," said Deeber. "I hope the pending SCC hearing against me will finally be dropped. I want to masturbate in peace-please people, this is a male rite of passage."

The Library is planning extensive renovations in the government documents section of the Library this summer.

Surprisingly, the Masturbator was wanking near "Hardbounds" and
"Oversized Books," not
"Gov. Docs."

Hardwood invokes White Skin Privilege

Students storm prez's house at 1 a.m. in protest, Pierce House reaction violent

By MOANIKI LEWCLINSKI
Staff Writer

Seeking to avoid scrutiny that could potentially cripple his capacity to govern, Bates College President Fondle Hardwood is invoking white skin privilege, which could delay the investigation into allegations of lewd sexual behavior leveled by Barney the Bobcat, the school's mascot.

Barney alleges that Hardwood exposed himself and then asked Barney to perform a lewd sexual act. Lawyers for Hardwood, however, claim that Barney's affidavit, obtained by The Bates Student from Androscoggin Superior Court, is not entirely clear on these points.

"Meow, heh heh, purr, hehhhhh, meow," said Barney in his affidavit.

The doctrine of white skin privilege has rarely, if ever, been invoked by a sitting Bates President. Sources close to the investigation said that Hardwood feels that Barney's allegations constitute a challenge to white skin privilege which "98 percent of Bates students enjoy anyway," according to Hardwood.

Hardwood clarified his position in an affidavit submitted to Androscoggin Superior court and obtained by The Bates Student.

"Dammit, I'm Whitey. Do you know who I am? I am The Man. You would think that these rabble rousers could defer to the majesty of my white skin. Any allegations that threaten the status quo, hegemony, and all that other crap Bates students bitch about are hereby dismissed," said Hardwood.

Rumors have also surfaced this week that Hardwood may have actually been operating a Ferris Wheel in Nebraska during the time he claims he was studying for his Ph.D. in Philosophy at American University.

Student activists have scheduled a 1:00 a.m. protest in front of the President's house to demonstrate against the oppression of Ferris Wheel operators in Nebraska.

Meanwhile Barney has absconded to the Ramada Inn in Lewiston, where his lawyer, Lonnie Kellinochran, has sequestered him to preclude morally questionable inquiries by confused reporters from the Lewiston Sun-Journal.

The Representative Assembly's response has been swift and meaningless. Failing to obtain a quorum of representatives, former RA President Klingon Sharke appointed himself Independent Counsel, and declared martial law in Lewiston.

"Nah nah nah nah nah nah nah, nah nah nah nah nah- Gittin jiggy wid' it," said Sharke. "Don't call it a comeback. It's been going on for years. I'm going to knock Hardwood out. Mama say knock Hardwood out."

Sharke shunned any notion that there was conflict of interest with his self-appointment as Independent Counsel. Hardwood videotaped Sharke with his pants down in the government documents section earlier this year, and claimed that the Masturbator conundrum had been solved. Hardwood sold the tape to the Film Board, which was forced to run hourly viewings to keep up with student demand.

"Now who's The Man," said Sharke. "I just hope this teaches Hardwood not to f*ck with the RA."

E-Room to rent bongos to students

By MARY WANNAH
Staff Stoner

In a move likely to cause angst among administrators, the E-room has announced plans to rent bongos to students beginning next year.

"The E-room, in conjunction with the Outing Club, has always been on the forefront in terms of providing social opportunities for Bates students. With the advent of the information age, we feel that renting bongos to students will enable us to compete in the marketplace. Hey, maybe we can't offer porn, but after using one of our bongos, we feel confident students can see porn ... if they want to," said E-Room guru Ted Constantinople.

"This is our way of affirming the earth. You see, and this is off the record, we're going to call it a medicinal marijuana clinic. That way, we can claim that we're just trying to relieve pain and stuff. Those bastards in Maine Liquor Enforcement our too busy busting our balls for drinking watered down beer. They'll never find out about our plan," said Constantinople, speaking on the condition of anonymity and confidentiality.

The E-Room has not decided on the price for renting bongos, but sources within the Outing Club assured The Bates Spudent that prices would be competitive.

In a move to forge solidarity among different groups on campus, the New World Coalition announced plans this week to sell marijuana "and other hallucinatory delights," said New World Coalition leader Arthur Spamoulis.

The Outing Club and the New World Coalition are planning to seek cosponsorship funds for their endeavor. According to documents obtained by The Bates Spudent, the New World Coalition and Outing Club have requested $348,422 for next year, which would probably be a mammoth increase in their budgets.

News of the New World Coalition-Outing Club collaboration has literally spawned a drug war on campus. Chase Hall Committee, in an effort to increase its budget, is promising drugs at all events. The Bates Democrats are moderating their drug proposal by promising not to inhale.

"No more fun of any kind," was Dean Peter Trailer's response.

Closed door discussions lead to arrest

By CABEZA de VACA
Staff Writer

It was one of the few sunny days of April and most of the campus was sunning itself on the quad, but the door to the CSA office, Center for Social Annihilation, was closed and the shades were drawn. Inside Assistant Dean of Students Peter Trailer and former WRBC manager Keith "Gimme some cold drink" Gagger were shaking hands over what would soon be called a shady deal.

The two men, and a few unnamed others, have been meeting off and on for the majority of second semester and short term. While attempts were made to keep the subject of these discussions confidential, there have been mutterings and rumors of negotiations to salary student officers.

As Trailer and Gagger attempted to exit the office, they were stopped by the L.A.P.D who arrested them on charges of money laundering, following up on a tip from the Bates Film Club.

Trailer was accused of siphoning Activities monies to Gagger in exchange for backing off on the subject of salaried organization officers.

The head of the Film Club called the LAPD after learning of this.

"Hey! Why should Gagger get paid? All he did was run a radio station. We're supposed to be doing this because we love it," said the president of the club, who receives a grade 4 salary from the College for playing a movie once a week.

"I didn't do anything wrong! I was just buying ... a cd ... that's all!" cried Trailer as he was led from Chase Hall.

Gagger broke down as he was led away.

"I'm flunking out, I have no social life, I have nothing! And all because of WRBC," he cried.

The SCC, Stupid Conduct Committee, will be deciding the fates of the involved parties whenever they get around to it.

Plans for Next Year's Senior Week Already Underway: "We're Gonna Party Like It's 1999"

Their Senior Week may still be a year away, but don't tell that to the junior class - already plans are underway for what promises to be the Senior Week to end all Senior Weeks. Said RA treasurer, future class presidential candidate, and general administrative lackey Matt Velveeta '99, "We're gonna party like it's 1999!" When asked about the enthusiasm he and his classmates share for next year's extravaganza, Velveeta said, "I was dreamin' when I thought this, so sue me if I go too fast, but life is just a party, and parties were meant to last." He also expressed optimism about tonight's Champagne Semi-formal, saying, "Yeah, they say two thousand zero zero party over, oops, out of time, so tonight I'm gonna party like it's 1999!" The artist formerly known as Prince declined comment.

AN OPEN LETTER TO BATES STUDENTS

We at L. L. Bean have been proud to serve as clothiers to the Bates community for over 80 years. Our store has been a favorite shopping venue of generation after generation of Batesies. The classic, preppy style of L. L. Bean shirts, dresses, boots, outerwear, and fishing equipment is part of the wardrobe of every sane, normal, upper-middle-class Bates student; indeed, an item from L. L. Bean has been in the closet of every Bates student admitted since 1966.

Despite this long tradition of homogeneity, we realize that there are four or five of you on campus who still have yet to own one of our products. Over the next few weeks, we plan to meet with each of you deviants individually to discuss this situation, referring you for psychological evaluation as necessary. I mean, how the f*ck can you go through Bates without wearing our clothes? Jeez!

As you are well aware, the faculty considered making ownership of one or more L. L. Bean products part of the new general education requirements - don't jeopardize your Bates degree by failing to conform with the Bates cultural hegemony. Remember, popularity, good breath, an affable personality, and invulnerability to STD's are all benefits of making L. L. Bean an integral part of your college wardrobe.

Tarbell Pool closed; Lake Andrews now hosts meets

In an effort to produce a swimming environment "more in harmony with nature," Athletic Director Decaf Coffee announced that all future swim meets will be conducted in Lake Andrews. Coaches speculate that this change in venue will give Bates swimmers a much stronger advantage, since training while wearing the heavy hazardous-waste body suit and respirator necessary to survive prolonged contact with the murky waters will build additional strength and stamina. However, two swimmers are missing, and are presumed to have joined schools of the lake's mutant goldfish.

Largest-ever Pierce House party results in largest-ever bootfest

Maintenance officials continued cleanup efforts today in the wake of a trail of gastrointestinal destruction wreaked by attendees of Pierce House's annual "Grunt and Drink Natty Lite" party on Saturday. Shortly after the kegs ran dry in the Pierce basement, partygoers, each of whom consumed an average of 18 beers, swarmed their way onto Chase Hall quad, leaving a mass of beer-induced vomit in their wake. Maine Liquor Enforcement officials declined comment.

SCC sentences student to flogging for violating 'oral policy'

By SOME GUY AT A COMPUTER
Supreme Prefect

The SCC, Stupid Conduct Committee, passed a landmark decision this past week when they sentenced J.P. Jones '01 to public flogging for publicly violating an unnamed 'oral policy.'

Security Officer Paul the Menace answered the late night call from a student who had been crossing the Quad.

"He's out there! And, ohmigod, he's doing it. I didn't know it was possible! You've got to get over here," cited the transcription of the call.

When the Menace got to the Quad, he spotted Jones.

"I can't believe it. There he was, plain as day — or night as it were, just doing it. Just flaunting 'oral policy.' It was a very large mess," said the Menace.

The Menace then called Dean Fernando C. Branham to inform her of what was occurring. She instructed the Menace to contact Maintenance and have them take care of the mess created by the 'oral policy' immediately.

Maintenance was required to provide overtime and hazardous duty pay for the late night clean-up.

The next morning, the red-tape ball got rolling.

According to the Student Handbook, a charge of violating 'oral policy' is to be sent

"He's out there! And, ohmigod, he's doing it. I didn't know it was possible! You've got to get over here."

Phone transcription directly to the SCC, without passing go. This case went to the head of the SCC queue, bumping down the case of Common' spoon theft and the case against the sober rugby team.

"This is horrible. 'Oral policy' is a foundation of this college. It is almost as strongly imbedded in our psyches as that of, umm, eagle, ummm, something ism, ummm egalitarianism. How anybody could actually do that, actually violate our 'oral policy,' I don't know," said Branham.

Jonesspoke to The Spudent in an exclusive interview.

"Why did I do it? I don't know. Nobody ever told me I couldn't. It's not exactly written down anywhere. It's not like I was hurting anyone. I blueslipped the area and was planning on cleaning it up afterward," said Jones.

As a result of violating this 'oral policy,' Jones was sentenced to a public flogging of 42 lashes.

A lottery was held among faculty and administration to determine who would have the honor of administering the sentence. Professor of the Pontificating Science Dougie Hodgkins won.

The flogging occurred without incident, in front of Chase Hall, with the Bates EMS standing by and keeping count of the lashes

Grumble releases Public Eye: Too Hot For TV! video

Video retailers are reporting record sales following the recent release of Public Eye: Too Hot For TV!, featuring TV journalist and Bates alum Brian Grumble. Grumble produced and narrates the video of outtakes from his CBS newsmagazine Public Eye, which consists mainly of violent altercations, profanity-laden tirades, and episodes of nudity involving guests on the program.

Among the most notable scenes: a melee in which a fuming Henry Kissinger hurled chairs and other furniture at the CBS camera crew, prompting Grumble to respond in kind by lofting an 80-pound credenza in the former secretary of state's direction; an interview in which a scantily clad Madeleine Albright smears chocolate syrup over her chest and dares a visibly uncomfortable Rita Braver to lick the syrup off; a hot-headed rant in which Ross Perot disputes his 1996 election loss and challenges his opponents to "settle it with a six-shooter, Texas-style;" and other violent episodes from guests like Sarah Ferguson and Bill Gates.

The move comes as part of Grumble's contract with CBS, under which he will produce two additional videos: When Former Morning TV Hosts Attack!, and a remake of exercise video classic Abs of Steel starring CBS anchor Dan Rather.

Draper's gone, get rid of the ramps

With the campus' most active supporter of accessibility graduating, admin. says ramps too costly

By DAVE CLEAVER
A guy

With the graduation of wheelchair user and accessibility crusader Shawn Draper '98, Maintenance honcho Drew Perrymore announced plans to raze wooden entrance ramps on a half a dozen buildings around campus and sell the wood to offset rising tuition costs.

"With the comprehensive fee eclipsing the $30,000 barrier, we have to cut costs everywhere we can," said Bates treasurer Peter Spackler.

The high-quality lumber from these six ramps will fetch a good $150 on the cordwood market, which is reportedly enough to pay President Hardwood's salary for 14 minutes.

The $13,000 that the Senior Class has raised for accessibility improvements (their class gift) is being siphoned into Hardwood's legal defense fund. The reaction from Senior Class President Rob Blutarsky was measured.

"I'm just not entirely convinced that we ought to siphon our funds for accessibility improvements into the legal defense fund because I think that reasonable people believe that accessibility is a more worthy cause than protecting white skin privilege," said Hurtus (See Page Three for Related Article).

The response from the Dean of Student's office was less restrained.

"I'm gonna be the first one out there chainsawing those damn ramps down. VROOOM VROOOM," declared Dean Sewer in a statement sent to student mailboxes on Thursday.

Student activists have scheduled a 1:00 AM demonstration in front of President Harward's house to protest the dismantling of the ramps.

Draper, now trapped in Pettigrew for a third day since receiving his cap and gown, could not be reached for comment.

tive of Miami Heat coach Phat Riley. Reilly still sports some scratch marks from the incident, but claims that he harbors no ill-feelings for the Sophomore from Mount Vernon, New Hampshire.

"What confused me most about the whole incident was that Lynch kept yelling out 'I'm gonna kill you PJ' as he choked the crap out of me," said Reilly. "I just figured he had some issues he needed to work out. I think he's getting help from the Health Center now."

Lynch declined to comment for this story, but his lawyer, Lonnie Kleinochran, issued a statement attempting to pin the guilt on Reilly.

"PJ, I mean Reilly brought this on himself. This ain't Seton Hall, PJ. This is the NBA, bitch. You're going to get slapped around some more if you don't pull your head out of your ass."

Lynch is not expected to be drafted by any NBA teams, although the Washington Generals, the perennial foe of the Harlem Globetrotters, has expressed interest in Lynch.

More from the Grumble front: now he's giving a rat's ass!

In the category of holy sh*t, Bates alum Bryant Grumble announced this week that he will give a rat's ass to Bates in response to a solicitation from the Development office.

"I'm serious. I can't think of a more fitting gift for my alma mater," said Grumble.

The rat's ass, selected personally by Grumble, is currently on route in an Amtrak train travelling from Harper's Ferry, West Virginia.

"Grumble has always been an innovator, a pioneer in terms of gift-giving. We welcome the rat's ass with open arms," said new Vice-President for Development and Alumni Affairs Victoria Devil.

Students have planned a 1:00 AM demonstration in front of President Harward's home to protest the colonialist exploitation of rats' asses.

Since Grumble's announcement, thousands of rats' asses have been sent to the Development office in Lane Hall.

"We've had to hire two additional workers just to handle the influx of rats' asses coming into this office," said Devil.

Bates B-ball stars head for NBA

By DAVE CLEAVER
A Very Prolific Writer

Despite a dismal 3-21 season, Senior Pimp Sergeant and Sophomore Messy Lynch have declared their eligibility for the NBA draft.

Sergeant stock has risen in recent days due to solid play in pick-up games in Alumni Gym. NBA scouts are now projecting him as a lottery pick. Sergeant, a 6'5 lanky son-of-a-bitch, distinguished himself on the Men's Varsity Team by being the only player not to talk sh*t during games.

"I'm offended when teams don't double-team me, especially Maine Maritime," said Sergeant in a rare outburst. "I'm going to be better than Van Horn. I'm hoping that the (expansion team) Vermont Birkenstocks will draft me in the third pick."

The Bates Spudent spoke with Chicago Bulls GM Herry Mause yesterday, who expressed interest in obtaining the services of Sergeant.

"I think he could be the next Jordan," said Mause. "We're planning on giving Mike his walking papers if Sarge is still around when we pick," said Mause.

Attempting to exploit the situation, Dark Farmer, a Sergeant look-alike and arguably the school's best basketball player, declared his intention to enter the NBA draft as well.

If selected, Farmer will be the first resident of East Millinocket, Maine to ever play in the NBA.

The fate of Lynch, however, seems uncertain as NBA scouts say that behavioral problems are deterring them from looking at Lynch, who can occasionally shoot the trey, but has the ugliest form this side of the Androscoggin.

Earlier this year, Lynch attempted to choke head coach Moe Reilly, a distant rela-

SHORT ESSAYS: Please choose one of the following two essays and submit a page response.

1) The Spice Girls have revolutionized the music industry since their arrival just a few short years ago. Please discuss the impact that Sporty, Posh, Scary, Baby, and Ginger, either collectively or individually, have had on your life. Tell us what you want, what you really really want.

2) During a classic scene in Animal House, Dean Wermer says the following to the boys of Delta at their conduct hearing: "No more Delta. I'm revoking your charter. No more fun of any kind." Please discuss the similarities between Dean Wermer and Dean Peter Taylor of Bates with particular emphasis on the "No more fun of any kind" part.

LONG ESSAY:

Officer Volpi of the Maine Liquor Enforcement agency approaches you during your Freshman year as you hold a fresh cup of Beast in your hand. When Officer Volpi asks that you show him some identification, you proudly flash your fake, convinced that you outpiggged the officer. To your surprise, Officer Volpi asks for a second form of identification. Employing all the BS skills that have given you the audacity to apply to Bates, explain how you would respond to Officer Volpi. Explain any positions held, positions desired, positions contemplated, but not articulated, and time held in those positions. Discuss how oppressed you feel as a result of Officer Volpi's inquiry. Use four-syllable words, fancy political concepts like fascism and totalitarianism, make references to the "Orwellian nightmare", and McCarthyism, and send lots of videotape- we like that.

Morally casual attitude house may get it up

Carnal lust embodied in a potential new theme house for those willing to literally 'live in sin'

By CHA-CHA MONTGOMERY
STAFF WRITER

Why is Katie Milwaukee smiling from ear to ear? Because she knows she might (getting) very busy next year. Kate is determined to be JA of the first year center in what could be Bates' newest theme house; the morally casual attitude house. The proposal addresses the neglected social need for persons willing to have safe, consensual sex with anybody, anywhere in any fashion short of that involving cold drink as lubricant.

In an attempt to attract students with even looser sexual standards of conduct, i.e. those willing to shag the first consensual bipped they see, the proposal is to totally revamp Cheney House into a den of pleasure. Cheney would get several new additions to its structure. A new whirlpool of edible jello would be installed in what was Cheney's kitchen. Group showers and a slip n' slide would replace all bathrooms. See-through floors and ceilings, vibrating mattresses, mood lighting, grip bars in walls and floors, and a x-rated filming studio on the roof would all be new components of the formerly chemical free house.

Housing director Keith Tannanfoob is said to be in complete agreement with the proposal. "If I didn't already maintain such a healthy sexual lifestyle of sin in my current home (Tannanfoob lives in Auburn's world famous brothel; Abdul's Palace of Pleasure) I'd move my whole family, young and old, into this theme house."

A nude beach, surrounding the nude swimming pool, would be placed as close to the President's house as possible so that he and his family could take quick skinny dips in between those pressing college fund raisers. When asked if to bear all on the idea, President Hardwood replied; "I feel it might be time for me to get into bed with students in an new, sexually alternative, kind of way. I'm randy just at the thought of it"

But the fun isn't supposed to be just for residents. Voyeuristic pleasure would also be an ultimate aim of the house as well. "We considered public sexual workshops on the library terrace, but then we realized how cold it can get in the winter. So we came up with this option to make it fun year round." Large bay windows, without any curtains of any kind, will be installed into every room. Second and third floor rooms will have balconies accessible to the public with chairs, magnifying glasses, and (as always) free condoms.

John Conman, angling to be the morally casual attitude house's first RA, was quoted as saying; "We were worried that the alumni and the police would object to such a sexually provocative home for students. Then we offered some free interactive workshops and a direct connection to our real-time internet cameras if they supported our proposal. Now they're so fired up about this I'm worried that we'll have to beat them off with a stick.-No pun intended."

Housing director Keith Tannanfoob is said to be in complete agreement with the proposal. "If I didn't already maintain such a healthy sexual lifestyle of sin in my current home (Tannanfoob lives in Auburn's world famous brothel; Abdul's Palace of Pleasure) I'd move my whole family, young and old, into the place."

When asked to comment why there was such a big push for new house, Dean Sawboner said; "We need a way to inject quick, emotionally shallow sin back into this place ever since the new alcohol policy killed our social scene. I haven't really been satisfied that way since the last Page party in 1997. Come to think of it, I haven't been satisfied since.....since.... damn, have I been satisfied?"

Interested persons considering application to the house should be limber, open minded, non-allergic to foodstuffs and lubricants, and tolerant of having explicit, naked photos of themselves around campus, in movie previews before film board showings...

campus, in movie previews before film board showings, in the admissions viewbook, and over the internet. House proponents say background is irrelevant, as included in the petitions to live in the house are two Carmelite Nuns, a security officer, and the entire staff of the registrar's office.

The Bates Spudent was wildly disappointed when the college announced who would receive honorary degrees last week. We refuse to recognize them. We will protest in front of the President's house at 1:00 AM should the college confer honorary degrees upon them. Through a painstaking selection process, we have selected our own honorary degree recipients. It is our hope that the college will recognize these individuals, and abandon their misguided choices.

Moanica BlewClinsky- Doctor of Oral/Oval Sex- Her resume reads like that of a porn star. No, Moanica was not content to simply file, fax, and phone as an intern. She distinguished herself by allegedly toying with the President's distinguishing characteristic. Congrats, Moanica- we're proud of you.

Latrell Spreehell- Doctor of Martial Arts- The way you choked and choked your coach really impressed us. We endorse your decision to sue the NBA- take 'em for all their worth. We love you Spree- please don't kill us.

The Masturbator- Doctor of Unfettered Proclivities- We caught you, but you slipped through our hands. We want you to be our graduation speaker though- you've spent so much time here. We've come to adore you, sir. Don't disappoint us.

Nostradamus- Doctor of Tarot Cards- While we do not concur with your sentiment that the world will end because the Bobcats won a football game, we think you're a pretty cool old dude. Excellent! No wait a second- you suck you lazy bastard. You're the reason Social Security is going to collapse. I'm paying for you to sit on your ass. You bastard- You Killed Kenny!

The Bates Spudent is published once yearly by a highly trained group of western nations known casually as "The goon squad." Bates College is the enemy. Editorials represent the exclusive opinions of those vagrants we randomly run into in the streets and kidnap. Views expressed in individual columns, features and letters are solely those that will garner us more power, wealth, and Camel bonus dollars.

As the section name suggests, the opinion pages of The Student are intended to be flagrantly anti-egalitarian forum within which shady Canadians and people from Rhode Island can be ridiculed for no discernable or specific reason. To this end, we invite members of the community to contribute to it.

All letters must be signed "Mr. Fabulous", but under special circumstances the newspaper may tell you to go hell anyway. People may deliver single-spaced, typed letters to 224 Chase Hall, or mail them to The Bates Student, 309 Bates College, Lewiston, ME 04240, but even if they do, they will be disregarded without hope of recourse. They may also submit letters on a 3.5- inch computer disk, or by e-mail to ican'tseempants@abacus.bates.edu.

The Bates Student reserves the right not to print letters just for kicks, and to edit letters for length, clarity, and the chance to change what you have to say, twisting your words into something vulgar.

Additional postal correspondence will be disregarded. We do not care to respond to your crap under any circumstance.

You can reach the Bates Student by asking someone who knows how to get here.

Grab it proud and firm boys

Writer says it's time "Men's Studies" reared it's ugly rump

To the Men of Bates College;

Guys, it's time. No more will we stand for being snubbed and repressed. The time to stand up and say; "I've got a jimmy between my legs and I'm proud!" is now! For years, Bates college has unfairly discriminated against men by offering only Womens Studies, neglecting the hairier gender altogether.

It's not as if historical, scientific, and political studies are dominated by men, right? So where do we get to talk about us? I don't see any courses discussing male-centric issues of pressing concern, do you? Where are the workshops on organizing to support more free net porn and how to combat middle-aged beer gut? Where are the anthropological studies examining the most devastating social plague of history; male pattern baldness?

When are we going to rise up and demand that it's our time to grab, scratch, and spit? I say if it itches, reach right down there and say with a firm public grip, "I'm male, and I'm proud." Don't be shy. Go outside right now, find a random bystander and grab your crotch in exclamation of our uniqueness as a man. You have package. Love it.

I need support for my views. How am I supposed to dominate and maintain hegemony without a foundation of emotionally sexist thinking? Repression doesn't come naturally to me you know, I needed to develop it through years of selfless ignorance and stupidity. I think to myself; what about all those guys in the world, alone and subjected to attitudes that tell them their genitalia doesn't bestow upon them a certain justification for attitude and arrogance. They should know that it does!

Need proof of our greatness as men? Want justification of Men's Studies? We are the only gender who brazenly show off their breasts in public, for the whole world to love and admire! We can pee standing up, and make designs with it in the snow! Where would the world be without the need for urinals? Why, people would have to use toilets to pee into instead. We have sex organs that inflate and deflate like balloons, and can serve as clothes hangers in a real jam. Who can't be envious of that?

One word; belching.

Matter of fact, I'm going out right now to put on my beer cap, show off my chest hair, not shower for a few days, and hock lugies all over the place while I make crude jokes and defend my male prowess with lots of esoteric athletic opinion. MEN'S STUDIES NOW!

Ladd; you're not welcome

Circ head advocates anti-patron policy

To the editor;

In a last ditch attempt to revamp their image from clean-cut and helpful to inept and sinful, the library's circulation department student assistants should get a new look. Starting immediately, I think circulation assistants should be required to wear extra large, floppy sombreros, and must start showing up to their shift intoxicated.

It's my feeling that our helpful, informed and professional attitude towards work is actually attracting more patrons to our library. Obviously, we have no desire at all to work or help the public, so we want to develop a policy that drives people away. With our new look and attitude, less people will want to ask us for help, and we'll have more time for brouhahas and mixed drinking. Drinking on the job, a practice previously frowned upon, should be encouraged in what I see as the of 'developing of an alternative perspective towards those f@ck&ng people who check out books.' Smoking ugly looking and smelly cigars should be rewarded through a cash bonus system.

In addition, the multi purpose computer lab should host a series of keggers with extra loud, ear shattering music deep into the night. Maybe we can host some pornos in there too.

Stephan Supp-poze, a circulation assistant, was ecstatic when he first heard this suggestion from me. He said to me; "I can't believe it Jules! I've always wanted to come to work completely nude, but couldn't because of our strict dress code requiring pants and shoes. If this happens, I'll come to work wearing only my ray-bans, my sombrero, and a nice set of fashionable pumps."

The reference department, always ahead of the bibliographic fashion curve, has already started a new policy where its personnel wear sidearms behind the desk. The reference librarians paved the way for these changes in the seventies when they came up with the idea of carrying loaded guns and brandishing them at patrons when they come to ask questions. It's simply my feeling that we here at circulation need to catch up and remain cutting edge as a drunken debacle of misinformation and confusion.
